A FORTUNATE ADVENTURER.

One of the Men who Founded the Town of Tombstone, A. T.

The recent dispatch announcing the discovery of gold on the Yukon river, in Alaska, recalls one of the romantic experiences of Western mining life. The Alaska discoverer, whose name should have been given as Scheiffelin, instead of Schuffelm—ss was telegraphed—is the man who located the rich mines at Tombstone, A. T., and founded and named the town. The story of the "find" is a remarkable one. "Ed" Scheiffelin, with his brothers and one or two companions, was prospecting in Southern Arizona some four or five years ago, when the country contained comparatively few white men and was overrun by hostile Apaches. The party, in Western parlance, were "down on their luck." They had made no strikes, and their supplies were running low. It was a condition of affairs which Scheiffelin was inured in, for he had been so reduced as to live on meal and beans given him in camp as an act of charity. Finally they resolved, in desperation, to start across into what is now known as the Tombstone district. Other prospectors had kept away from fear of the Indians. The country was dry and desolate, and contains but little game. The few intruders had never returned.

When Scheiffelin's little party announced their determination it was generally predicted that they would meet death by Apache bullets or by starvation. "All you will find will be your tombstone," was the sarcastic farewell of a miner as the adventurous band started into the barren hills. They journeyed through carti and mesquite, crossed arroyas and climbed hills, examining ledges and croppings and scrutinizing every rock for signs of pay ore that might lead to the discovery of a vein. All the time they kept a keen outlook for Apaches. They slept rifle in hand, while a faithful watch was kept throughout the night. But they found nothing. Footsore, weary and discouraged, they camped on the present site of the town of Tombstone. Their provisions were nearly exhausted. It was imperative for them to find food at once, or give up their attempt and turn backward. One of the party, taking his rifle, went out to hunt for a deer. In his absence the others hopelessly began examining the rocky ground near their camp, and at last fortune proved kind. When the hunter returned he found that he and his companions were millionaires. They had found a rich outcropping of ore that hinted at the wealth beneath their feet. They "located" their claims, and after a period of waiting partially developed them.

In May, 1880, "Ed" Scheiffelin and his brothers sold their share in these mines for a round million to a Philadelphia syndicate. Now a town of some 5000 inhabitants stands on the ground where the penniless adventurers camped. When the news of the strike went out and prospectors rushed in, Scheiffelin, as the "oldest inhabitant" and founder, was asked to name the town. He recalled the parting words of the miner when he started out, and said: "Call it Tombstone." The outcrop first discovered was supposed to be from a vein, but, on exploration, has proved to indicate a rich deposit, in place of which there is now an immense yawning gulf. Several claims were laid out which have since developed into mines, and some probably worked out, but they still bear the tuneful names of "Owl's Last Hoot," "Lucky Cuss," "Tough Nut," and "Good Enough," while one is named the "Tribune." But Scheiffelin was too thoroughly infected with the mining fever to be content with his suddenly acquired riches. Within the last year he fitted out a small steamer at San Francisco, gathered about him a party of adventurers, and started to seek the golden fleece in the frozen wilds of Alaska. Now, if the report be true, it appears that Fortune has again proved his friend.—N. Y. Tribune.

EYEBROWS.

IF YOU WANT A PAIR OF RAVISHING, LIMPID EYE CURTAINS, READ THIS.

If the eyebrows, a fashionable correspondent writing from London remarks, are inclined to spread irregularly, pinch the hairs together where thickest. If they show a tendency to meet, this contact may be avoided by pulling out the hairs every morning before the toilet. The dash of orientalism in costume and face now turns the lady's attention to her eyelashes, which are worthless if not long and drooping. Indeed, so prevalent is the desire for this beautiful feature, that hairdressers and ladies' artists have scores of customers under treatment for invigorating their stunted eyelashes and eyebrows. To be sure, for evening, a lady can manufacture a magnificent article with a crayon of Egyptian black or a common match, if driven to an exigency, and on the street a Brussels veil will cover a multitude of facial errors; but when it comes to an after dinner reception or a lunch party, the genuine article or a very good counterfeit is necessary. To obtain these fringed curtains, anoint these roots with a balsam made of two drachms of nitric oxide of mercury mixed with one of leaf lard. After an application wash the roots with a camel's hair brush dipped in warm milk. Tiny scissors are used, in which the eyelashes are carefully, but slightly, trimmed every day. When once obtained, refrain from even touching the lids with the finger nails. There is more beauty in a pair of well kept eyebrows and full, sweeping eyelashes, than people are aware of, and a very inattractive and lustreless eye assumes new beauty when it looks out from beneath elongated fringes. Instead of putting cologne water on the handkerchiefs, which has come to be considered a vulgarism among the ladies of correct taste, the perfume is spent on the eyebrows and lobes of the ears.

NOTIS.

What the Editor of the Kansas City Journal Discovered.

When we arrived we found the Abyssinian bloodhound gazing at the following notice pasted on the door of the editorial room:

NOTIS.

Ef yew doo nott leev the countri within twenti four (24) hours wee will make you leev. We air awl Missooriens except 8, en wee meen bisness. Yew hav sed wee wus bot up to render a verdick, en only yure blud can wipe out the insult. We ken hardly hold ourselves bak now.

We confess this article alarms us. There is murder in every line of it (of the Queen's English) and the recklessness displayed (in the spelling) shows that these men would not hesitate to accomplish the most desperate crimes. Our fighting editor has gone to New York to lick Sullivan, and the Abyssinian has grown sick from waiting. We are afraid to call the police, because this crowd has already killed one policeman and want to kill more. We are really in bad shape. We need help. If any kind-hearted citizen knows of a worthy nihilist out of a job we desire that he inform us without delay. If a real, genuine Fenian is concealed about the premises of any of our subscribers we will pay him handsomely for his assistance. County marshals are too bloodthirsty, and are liable to make a mistake and soil the carpet with an innocent advertiser or poet, both of whom frequently call on friendly errands. We desire a good reliable man until the Abyssinian pup recovers. No one need apply who has not sufficient detective ability to kill the right parties.

HIGHLY SATISFACTORY.

Impure blood and low vitality are the great sources of most diseases for which Burdock Blood Bitters is the specific. S. Perrin, Druggist, of Lindsay, writes that Burdock Blood Bitters give more general satisfaction than any blood purifier in the market. (22)

Daily Colonist.

SATURDAY MORNING, FEB. 24TH, 1883.

L. P. FISHER, Advertising Agent, 21 Merchants Exchange, San Francisco, is authorised to receive advertisements for the columns of this paper.

THE CHANNEL TUNNEL.

This great project is not dead; far from it. It has been simply indulging in a nap; and when awakened again it will be found refreshed and invigorated. Sir Edward Watkins, head of the company of public spirited Englishmen who proposed to construct the tunnel, addressed the shareholders at a meeting held in London on the 10th ultimo, and declared himself more strongly impressed than ever with the importance and desirability of the scheme. He thought no one now had the slightest doubt that the tunnel was perfectly feasible, and that it could be completed in a remarkably short time, and at very much less cost than was originally anticipated. To have proved the practicability of a work of such magnitude was, he considered, a matter for pride to those who were the authors of that proof, but in addition he thought they might claim to have made the subject of connecting France and England by a tunnel under the sea a question of world-wide discussion. In every English-speaking country certainly the question had been and was being frequently discussed, and it was very odd that the only nation in which there was a whisper of dissent to that which was now the only remaining point—namely, whether the work, as a national question, ought to be done at all—was this country. After referring to the prejudice against the great exhibition of 1851, he quoted some remarks made by M. Grevy a short time ago to an address from some English working men. Sir Edward Watkins contended that he felt rather ashamed of some of his countrymen when they talked about dreading an attack from France or any other country. The moment that we were so weak that we could be attacked he maintained that we deserved to be attacked. For his own part he did not believe in any fear of invasion, but rather in the manhood and solidity of his countrymen. They had had some brilliant testimony to the value of connecting the two countries. The chief argument of Prince Albert in favor of the work was that Europe would become a great hostile combination commercially against England, and that England would be seriously injured in the long run, if the tunnel were not constructed. Cobden said that "the great arch of alliance" between the two countries was the tunnel, and further that the good feeling which existed between the upper classes ought to penetrate the masses of the two nations. He had seen it stated in France and England papers that M. Thiers was opposed to connecting the two countries by a tunnel, but he (the chairman) was a living witness to the contrary. M. Thiers said to him "My only difficulty is that, from the information I have, it will take so long a time that I am afraid it will never be done. If it can be done it is the greatest work of civilization of the century." In 1878, too, in company with Lord Brabourne, he (the chairman) had to see M. Gambetta to remove some difficulties as to works for improving the harbor at Boulogne to facilitate communications between the two countries. M. Gambetta himself then raised the question of the tunnel, stating that if it were only made it would be a perfect cure, whereas the works of the harbour would, to use the late statesman's words, be a "mere alleviation." He believed that the cost of the Channel Tunnel would not very much exceed what it would be if the work were on land instead of under the sea. Instead, however, of taking the cost at £65,000 a mile, let them assume that it would be £100,000 a mile, and that would represent a cost of £2,400,000 for the tunnel under the sea. He believed the estimate of £350,000 for the tunnel to connect the Chatham and Dover and the South-Eastern Railways would not be exceeded. The entire cost of the work, therefore, came to only £3,000,000, and, if that were so, it should, he maintained, be one of the most profitable enterprises ever undertaken. His colleague, Mr. Withers, reminded him that there was a rumor that morning of an arrangement having been made by which the Irish mails would be accelerated by one hour. The Channel Tunnel would accelerate the mails by two hours, not only between England and France, but between England and all Europe, and between England and India. He was one of those who thought that the tunnel should be the property of the nation. He had advocated that with the government, but the government had thought fit to reply that the work was not one to be taken out of the category of those works which in this country were usually executed by private enterprise. They were now waiting for the verdict of the government and of parliament. He had told them the opinions of Prince Albert, Mr. Cobden, and MM. Grévy, Thiers, and Gambetta, and he asked the shareholders, as English citizens, whether it was not time that some one on the part of our government, did that which the government had hitherto been silent upon—announce to them whether the disciples of the late Mr. Cobden believed in him still, or whether they thought the policy of isolation and separation was to be reinstituted between England and France. He did not think that a government had a right, on so important an international question, to preserve absolute silence, and he considered that, before the company introduced their bill into parliament, Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Bright especially, as friends and assistants of Mr. Cobden in procuring the French Treaty, ought to give their opinions publicly in no uncertain language, and to let the English people know what the leaders of the popular party in this country thought about the subject. As regarded the finances of the company, until they knew the decision of parliament they could simply preserve their works and stand still. Mr. Edward Cazlett then addressed the meeting. He said it was not the workmen of England who feared an invasion of France or any foreign wars. They could not suppose that the government of the country was really adverse to the undertaking. Such men as Mr. Gladstone, Mr. Bright, Lord Hartington, and Sir C. Dilke would not oppose facilities of communication with a sister country like France. The opposition, strange to say, proceeded from a section of our military authorities, headed by the hero of Tel-el-Kebir—a fact which seemed the most curious point of all. He only hoped that the difficulty would be surmounted; and surely, if the necessity arose, there were means by which the tunnel might be destroyed. ("Hear, hear" from the chairman.) He hoped that those connected with the undertaking would not lose heart, for he was sure that in prosecuting the work they would have the support of the great mass of the English people. The meeting unanimously passed resolutions in favor of the prosecution of the scheme and then adjourned. Public feeling in England is rapidly changing in favor of the scheme. The French government and people are thoroughly committed to the scheme, and it is confidently hoped that the absurd prejudice which exists in military minds the tunnel will be overcome by the adoption of every precaution against its being used for the purposes of invasion.

REV. ROBERT COLLYER ON THE SABBATH.

This eminent New York divine, second only in eloquence and influence to Talmage and Beecher, has been giving utterance to his views in the church of the Messiah on the recently passed Sunday law in that city, which seems to be very puritanical in its provisions. Founding his discourse on that part of the gospel which contains this declaration of the Savior: "The Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath," he proceeded to say that "the poor old apple woman on the street corner had been confronted by the ghost of the Puritan sabbath, and it had threatened to devour her and her table. The poor little news boys had heard it and had shaken in their shoes. The bravest little fellows on Manhattan Island were the newsboys. They could give most of us points in endurance But there was no hope for them on that Sunday when the ghost made its appearance. The watchdogs of Moses were after them and they had no alternative of being led off by the ears or of being 'stuck' with their papers." Mr. Collier said "he wouldn't like to repeat all the newsboys said that day, but he was not sure that the recording angel had not blotted it all out with the tears shed by the little ones. One pathetic little cripple on Union Square was warned by a friendly policeman that the Sabbatarian scouts were out and that he had better hide himself in his den. There were thousands of poor creatures wanting food for themselves and their children, but they found that the ghost had his eye on them, and meant business. They meant business too, but they couldn't do it. It was an old saying that the rich kept the feasts of the church and left the fasts to the poor. It was so now." Mr. Collyer's newsboy had whispered to him, "They'll be after us to-morrow, but you shall have your paper." He thought the editors and proprietors of papers who made the first sale should be hauled up and not the small boys who distributed them. It is strange, but no less strange than true, that a prejudice, which cannot but be considered unreasonable, exists in the minds of many Sabbatarians of the stricter sort against taking in or reading a Sunday morning paper. Those, for the most part, well meaning Christians forget that all the manual labor on a Sunday morning paper is done on the Saturday, and after seven o'clock on the Sunday morning the establishment is shut up and everything is quiet. It is therefore only the distribution which takes place on the Lord's day and that is accomplished before a large majority of people are out of their beds. With 19 out of every 20 of the Monday morning publications it is quite different. The major portion of the work is done exclusively on the Sunday. Editors, reporters, compositors and sometimes pressmen are busy most of the day and with them the usual day of rest is one of toil and close attention to work. There is no doubt that the drastic Sabbath law of New York city is a great hardship in this particular, as a prohibition of the sale of Sunday morning papers is virtually a prohibition to eat on that day to hundreds of families and thousands of individuals. While agreeing with Mr. Collyer that closing saloons and grogeries is a good thing, yet it must be admitted that in many other particulars he takes very extreme views of Sabbath observance or rather non-observance. There is certainly a mean between the extreme of puritanism and that of Mr. Collyer and others who advocate the doing of every man as seemeth right in his own eyes, regardless alike of the necessity of a day of rest or the higher injunction to keep holy the Sabbath day.

Ready-Made Houses.

The London (Ont.) Advertiser, in referring to this new industry, says that the Truaxes' planing mill at Walkerton, is turning out material for ready-made houses at a rapid rate. Orders for a whole row of houses can be filled in a few days, and it is not uncommon to see an entire street for Brandon or a block for Winnipeg sent out on a train twenty or thirty days after the order has been received. During the past season Messrs. Truax shipped two hundred and nineteen cars of knock-down house material to the Northwest. One of the partners in the firm accompanies each train, and superintends the putting up of the houses. Sometimes houses are ordered by telegraph in this fashion: "What can you furnish me a tidy cottage for, 22x40 feet, with bay window and verandah?" Next spring the enthusiastic house-builders expect to receive orders for entire villages, something after this style: "What is your lowest figure for five stores, two wagon and two blacksmith shops, one Methodist and one Presbyterian church, twenty-five cottages, a town hall and a lock-up, to be delivered on or before July 1st?" Orders have been received for twenty-one houses to be put up in Brandon next spring. The freight rate on these houses from Walkerton to Chicago is $40 a car; from Chicago to Minneapolis, $20 a car. The charge the balance of the way is enormous, owing to the lack of competition, the cost of a medium car through from the start to Winnipeg being $361. The large ones used by the Truaxes cost more. With British Columbia's inexhaustible timber resurces there is no reason why whole cities should not be manufactured at Burrard Inlet and other lumbering centres and transported over the C. P. R. R. to the other side of the Rockies for the treeless plains of the great interior. There is no reason why British Columbia lumber and timber products should not be exported to Edmonton in two or three years or even further at less cost than the same material can be furnished from the East.

British Columbian Views.

The London Graphic of January 27th, contains a series of illustrations, from sketches by the Marquis of Lorne, representing the salient features of the country traversed by his excellency and the Princess Louise, on their visit to British Columbia. The Graphic says: His excellency's original sketches are admirable—quite equal to those executed by professional artists." The illustrations are as as follows: San Francisco Bay from the Golen Gate; the Golden Gate; H. M. S. Comus leaving the harbor accompanied by General McDowell; the forts saluting; Government House, Victoria, B. C.; Mount Baker and San Juan Island; Bridge on C. P. R.; Yale, B. C.; Gorges of the Fraser River; Indians at at Lake Okanagan; Burrard Inlet; Village of Kamloops; River Terraces on the Tompson River; The Narrows on Schuswappe Lake; Spillmacheen Valley; Torchlight Boat Festival at New Westminster in honor of the Princess Louise; The Fraser River near its mouth; The Four Sisters and a reach of the Fraser River; The Peaks of the Four Sisters; Mount Hope on the Fraser River. These pictures are very finely engraved and give a good idea of scenery on the Pacific Slope. Their great value, however, will be the advertisement they give of Canada, its scenery, extent, resources and great public work—the Pacific Railway. For this his excellency deserves the thanks of all Canadians who not only appreciate art but also the good use made of it in the manner under notice.

Death of Mrs. James Trimble.

Yesterday morning, after a long and painful illness, the wife of Hon. James Trimble died, leaving behind a sorrowing husband and many friends who were won by her uniform kindness of disposition and charitable nature. Mrs. Trimble was a resident of Victoria for nearly a quarter of a century. Her good deeds were numerous. The necessities of distressed families were constantly relieved by her, and it may be truly said that in her demise the poor have lost a noble and disinterested friend. No deserving person ever applied to her without meeting a generous response, and at the sick bed her valuable services were always given cheerfully and freely. For the past two years the deceased failed slowly, and before closing her eyes on earthly scenes she gave to her attendants minute directions as to her shroud and other details connected with her funeral. The remains will be probably consigned to the grave on Sunday afternoon.

THE MILLENIUM.—A crank calling himself J. S. Sword of Dublin, has issued a "proclamation," which declares, among other things: "Planet Earth is now redeemed; and the CURSE will be removed." It also declares that—"the Christian Era now ends, and we enter upon the long-looked-for Millennium." He likewise says: "Heaven and Hell in unseen places are myths." That's what we call something like a prophecy. With Wiggins' storm indefinitely postponed, the Earth redeemed, the Millennium begun and Hell abolished, what more glorious picnic could be desired by the sons of men?

THE widow and family of the late Ambrose Molina, one of the victims by the explosion of the steamer Josephine, came over on the steamer Evangel yesterday, with the body of one of her children for interment here. The Evangel brought the family over free of charge.

MRS. POTT'S LECTURE.—Last evening Mrs. Pott's M. D., delivered her lecture on "Love Courtship and Marriage" at Philharmonic Hall, to a large audience, as might have been expected from the interesting nature of the subject. She was frequently applauded.

SUPREME COURT.

[Before Hon. Justice McCreight.]

FRIDAY, Feb. 23, 1883.

THE EXTRADITION CASE.

The two months having expired for which the Seattle saloon robbers—Harman and Dixon—were remanded back to gaol, again appeared before the court yesterday afternoon.

Mr. C. Wilson, for Mr. T. Davie, appeared for Washington Territory.

The prisoners were represented by Mr. Jackson.

The prisoners now applied for their discharge in accordance with an application made when last before the court.

Mr. Jackson quoted authority from the extradition treaty for this application. A telegram had been forwarded to the secretary of state for Canada on the 19th instant, notifying him that the application would be made.

Mr. Wilson referred to an imperial act of 1870 to show that the application should have been made to the governor-general and not to the secretary of state. He contended first that the telegram was not a notice, as there was no proof that it had been received; and second that the secretary of state was not the proper person to apply to. He read an affidavit from Seattle stating that an application had been made by the authorities of the United States to the governor-general of Canada for the necessary extradition papers to take the prisoners back to Seattle and that such warrant was on its way to this city and would arrive in due course of mail. Two letters were also referred to, one of them to Mr. T. Davie and the other to the superintendent of police, to the same effect.

His lordship remarked that he could not consider the notice by telegram a reasonable notice. He could not see that such a notice came under the statute.

Mr. Jackson contended that the meaning of the statute was that if at the expiration of two months the prisoners had not been delivered up, they should be discharged. He did not expect however that his lordship would direct their discharge at once, as a reply might arrive from the secretary of state in a few hours.

The court said it must give the authorities time to remit the application for discharge. This had not been done, as only four days had elapsed since the telegram had been sent and taking into consideration the fact that the governor-general had been away for a length of time, and that the lines are often out of order, he would not accept such a notice.

Mr. Jackson wanted to know what the court did consider a reasonable notice. He would have to apply for an order to bring the prisoners over to court daily till a reasonable time had elapsed. The liberty of the subject should be taken into consideration, and it was hard for the men to be in gaol for an indefinite time.

Mr. Wilson asked for a remand for another two months.

His lordship would simply remand the prisoners back into the custody of the authorities till further notice.

Court adjourned.

Municipal Police Court.

FRIDAY, Feb. 23, 1883.

An Indian charged with being drunk and disorderly was fined five shillings or six hours.

Tom, a Fort Rupert Indian, was charged with assaulting Kitty, his clootchman.

Officer Hough stated that last evening he found the prisoner and two clootchmen drunk and fighting in a cabin on Johnson street.

Supt. O'Connor said that judging by the prisoner's face he seemed to have got the worst of it, and as the clootchmen did not appear against him he would ask for his discharge.

The prisoner, whose face was profusely marked, was discharged.

Fighting Canada.

The Colonist of Victoria, B. C., has this paragraph regarding the late change of government:—

"For the 'fight Canada' policy of the late government will be substituted a policy of honourable peace on a basis which shall secure the province its treaty rights and lasting prosperity. No important public work will be abandoned or sacrificed; and the opening of the railway lands to settlement and the construction of the Island railway will occupy the immediate attention of Mr. Smithe and his colleagues."

The common sense of the people of British Columbia decides against the policy of "fight Canada." The common sense of the people of Manitoba made the same decision. The people of Ontario will not be less intelligent; they will decide against Mr. Mowat and his "fight Canada" policy.—Toronto Mail.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL'S SPEECH.

Full Text of the Document.

Honorable Gentlemen of the Senate, Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

It is my pleasing duty on the opening of a new parliament to congratulate you on the auspicious circumstances under which you will begin your labors.

Canada is in the enjoyment of peace and prosperity, and all her industries, agricultural, manufacturing and commercial, are in a healthy and improving condition.

Following the example of my distinguished predecessor, I paid a visit of some length to British Columbia last season. The great natural resources of that province promise that as soon as the Pacific Railway is completed an impulse to its prosperity, commensurate with the progress made elsewhere, will be assured. Meanwhile, the disposal of the lands set aside in aid of the railway to actual settlers will add to the importance and wealth of the province.

While passing through the United States I was rejoiced to observe many evidences of regard for the empire of which this country forms so large a portion. May this friendship, which is so fully returned by us, be as enduring as it is natural and advantageous to the mutual interests of both great nations.

The steady flow of settlers into Manitoba and the Northwest territories last year, and the assurances received of an increased immigration during the coming season, promise well for the early development of those fertile and salubrious regions

It is important that the laws relating to the representation of the people in parliament should be amended, and the electoral franchises in existence in the several provinces assimilated. A measure for this purpose will be submitted for your consideration.

I am advised that the judgment of the lords of the judicial committee of the privy council, delivered last June on the appeal of Russell vs. the Queen, goes to show, that in order to prevent the unrestrained sale of intoxicating liquors, and for that purpose to regulate the granting of shop, saloon and tavern licenses, legislation by the Dominion parliament will be necessary. Your earnest consideration of this important subject is desired.

Your attention is specially invited to a measure regulating factory labor and the protection of the workingman and his family.

Bill for the consolidation and amendment of the laws relating to the customs, the militia, and the public lands, will be laid before you.

Among other measures, bills will be presented to you respecting the civil service, the acts relating to banking and the examination of masters and mates of vessels navigating our inland waters.

I am glad to be able to inform you that the progress of the Canadian Pacific Railway has been quite unprecedented. Traffic can now be carried on the main line from Thunder Bay to within fifty miles of crossing of the South Saskatchewan, a distance of over one thousand miles. It is confidently expected that the Rocky Mountains will be reached during the present year, and that within the same period substantial progress will be made on the Lake Superior Section of the railway, and the track laid upon a large portion of the road now under contract in British Columbia.

I have also pleasure in stating that the traffic on the Intercolonial railway is largely in excess of any former year, and that the balance in favor of the road shows a gratifying increase.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

The accounts of the last fiscal year will be laid before you.

You will be pleased to learn that, notwithstanding the expenditure on capital account amounted to more than seven millions of dollars, the surplus of the consolidated revenue, together with the proceeds of the sales of the lands in the northwest during the year, were more than sufficient to cover that expenditure, and that the net debt at the close of the year and the amount of interest paid thereon were less than for the year previous.

The estimates for the ensuing year will also be submitted. They have been prepared with all due economy consistent with the necessary development of the varied resources of the Dominion.

On the first January 1885, the large five per cent. loan will mature. A bill will be submitted authorizing the issue of debentures bearing a rate of interest not exceeding 4 per cent. for the redemption of this loan.

Honorable Gentlemen of the Senate and Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

The subjects I have mentioned to you are of much importance, and I commend them to your consideration, with full confidence in your discretion and patriotism.

An Elephant on Hand.

One of the elephants sent as tribute from Burmah to China killed several persons in Pekin recently, having apparently become mad. The thickness of his skull and hide making it impossible to kill him, his keepers have disposed of him in an eminently Chinese fashion by digging a pit for him, in which he is to be allowed to starve to death.

"CHARLES C. STARING, HELL," SUICIDES.—Charles C. Staring, foreman on the West Shore railroad gravel bed, east of Syracuse, N. Y., shot himself dead at the Central hotel. He entered the hotel and registered as "Charles C. Staring, Hell." He handed a gold ring to the hotel clerk and asked him to give it to his wife, and without saying another word, pulled out a revolver and shot himself in the head. Death resulted instantly. His wife and two children reside at Little Falls. He was for many years a freight conductor on the New York central railroad. Domestic troubles were the cause of the rash act.

LEADING LONDON TOPICS.

The Opening of Parliament--General Notes.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—A cable special to the Tribune from London, of February 17th, says: The session of parliament has opened languidly with the Queen's address, which Lord Salisbury in a hair-splitting speech pronounced impalpable. It was followed in both Houses by debates which the public declines to consider important. The conservatives never appeared more destitute in policy or more hopeless of success. The ministerial programme as officially declared varies little from previous statements. The first division on the point whether Mr. Healy's imprisonment should be considered a question of privilege showed the Parnellities to be again reinforced by a small body of Radicals. The Egyptian division, which occurred last night, saw the Irish faction supporting the conservatives. The debate on the address threatens to extend through next week, but the speeches have been made thus far to empty benches. All the members say they seldom knew of the house beginning work so devoid of spirit. The conservatives hesitated whether to take part in the Egyptian debate, Sir Stafford Northcote at first resisting the temptation, then finally, as usual, acquiescing. The debate, from beginning to end, had no latent reality. The tories cheered to intimate their satisfaction with the smallness of the ministerial majority, which was only 35; but less than half of the whole house voted.

THE IRISH QUESTION.

The real troubles of the ministry are expected to begin next week, when the Irish amendment to the Queen's speech will be discussed. The Parnellites, yielding to a groundless apprehension that they might possibly be suspected of patriotic modesty, proclaimed early this week their resolve to embarrass the government and to obstruct public business. It is understood that Parnell will take an early opportunity for testing the efficiency of the new rule. The number of new Irish bills which have already been given publicity shows a determination on his part to make this, like the last, an Irish session. The political alliance between Parnell and Lord Randolph Churchill is apparently closer than ever. Lord Randolph led off an attack on Trevelyan and the Government's Irish policy in general, sneering at the methods of its execution. The Freeman's Journal has given an ominous intimation that Trevelyan will receive in the future the same treatment as Forster. This means that the Parnellities, despairing of cajoling, are determined to harrass the present Chief Secretary by the same methods which were directed against his predecessors.

ACROSS THE CHANNEL.

The pessimistic and perverse views of the crisis in France which continue to prevail in England are due mainly to the persistent partisanship of the Paris correspondents of London newspapers. These gentlemen are all reactionaries and are busily engaged in writing down the republic. They have succeeded in creating something like a panic in London, where the belief prevails, in many quarters, that a revolution is imminent in France. It is alleged that commercial and financial difficulties are adding to the feeling of alarm, for which thus far there is little substantial ground.

SPENCER ON COMMUNISM.

Herbert Spencer, replying to criticisms of the Edinburgh Review, utterly denies having any sympathy with communism and land robbery. He repels the Review's attempt to connect him with Henry George, whose book entitled "Progress and Poverty," the philosopher contemptuously dismisses as filled with visionary ideas.

BRADLAUGH'S CASE.

A cable special to the World from London says: Although the Bradlaugh demonstration was ridiculed by most of the London papers, and by some it was ridiculed mercilessly, it sufficed to cause the government to surrender to the agitation. I have the best authority for the statement that the Affirmation bill was an after-thought. In point of fact, it was not decided upon until in the afternoon of the the first day of the session. The bill is regarded as a great mistake by many of the best and hitherto most faithful friends of the government. The religious element of the community is everywhere strongly opposed to the idol of special legislation in favor of Bradlaugh. The conservatives have made up their minds to oppose the bill, tooth and nail, and they will be supported by the great body of non-conformists all over the country. In fact this comparatively trumpery affair seems quite likely to do the Gladstone Ministry more harm than all the blunders in Ireland and in Egypt put together.

PREMIER AND PARLIAMENT.

A cable special to the Sun from London says: Gladstone has not yet returned from Cannes, and his friends are equally divided in opinion as to whether he will reappear at all in the house during the present session. Parliament convened very quietly Thursday and the chief interest attached to Bradlaugh and his efforts to gain his seat. The energy and determination with which he managed the public demonstration in his favor and the extent of agitation which he excited in the public prints and among social organizations had their effect on the government, and resulted in the declaration that a bill allowing affirmation by members would be introduced at an early date. This is, of course, a practical triumph for the chief atheist in England. It has been loudly characterized by the opposition as an eternal disgrace and humiliation to a civilized country, a pusillanimous and infamous submission to a brutal and vulgar menace and an act which makes the concluding sentence of the Queen's speech, "I beseech Almighty God, as heretofore to bless your labors," to sound like rank blasphemy. The immense crowd which Bradlaugh had assembled in Trafalgar square, with banners and bands and badges, was for the most part composed of footpads, burglars and the criminal classes generally. It could not have been made of worse material. Whatever popular support Bradlaugh has is due to the belief that he ought to have his seat, apart from religious considerations, and to sympathy with his plucky endeavors to secure it. The conservatives charge that a large proportion of the liberal sentiment would be relieved by the abolition of the parliamentary oath and that the freethinkers and atheists already in the house are entirely too numerous.

THE FIRST ACTIVE DEBATE.

The first active debate will probably take place on Monday, when Parnell will move his amendment on the address in answer to the royal speech. The Irish party is full of energy and courage, but at the present juncture it sadly needs a real orator.

EGYPTIAN AFFAIRS.

Lord Dufferin is resting from his labors in Egypt, pending the action of the English government upon his projected plan of Egyptian reform. In the Soudan there are ominous clouds gathering. A few more successes and the False Prophet will fill the Eastern stage even more fully than Arabi did. The reconquest of Soudan threatens to become a political necessity, and if it does it must impose a fearful responsibility on England.

DUBLIN, Feb. 19.—As Carey passed the dock James Mullett struck at him and succeeded in touching his head. Carey turned to expostulate, but was pushed to the witness table by a detective.

Eastern Provinces.

(Per steamship Dakota.)

For the first time within the memory of the oldest inhabitant of Milwaukee, navigation on lake Michigan is completely closed.

Hon. James S. Macdonald, member of the legislative council of Nova Scotia, has been disqualified, and forced to vacate his seat in the council, he having become bankrupt.

Mr. Dawson, M. P., has given notice in the house of commons of a motion for the correspondence relating to the disasters which have occurred to Canadian vessels navigating the great lakes during the past three years.

For the first time in the history of the Canadian parliament, father and son are sitting as members of the same house of commons. The gentlemen who occupy this relation the one to the other are Sir Charles Tupper and Mr. Chas. H. Tupper member for Pictou.

The sessions of the Ontario branch of the Dominion temperance alliance came to a close recently. During the meeting much enthusiasm and hopefulness in the eventual triumph of their cause were displayed by the delegates.

The rumor is prevalent in Ottawa that at the close of the present session the Marquis of Lorne will go to England.

The ninety new members are distributed among the provinces as follows: Ontario, 42; Quebec 20; Nova Scotia 12; New Brunswick 6; Prince Edward Island, 4; Manitoba 3; British Columbia 3.

Two hundred and fifty-four boards of the Canada Methodist church have reported upon the basis of union up to Saturday, the 10th instant. 234 favor the basis, and 20 voted against. The aggregate votes are, for the basis, 2959; against, 482. No reports have yet been received from the maritime provinces, where the quarterly meetings are held in March, but it is not likely the action there will be different from that in the west.

A foul double murder is supposed to have been committed last night or this morning (10th instant). The victims are two infants, twins, found in a hole in the Red river, by a man named Peterson, a waterman. He states that he cut a hole in the ice to dip water. The following morning he went to the hole to get a supply, and floating in the hole were the bodies of two little babies, both naked. The bodies were tied together in an old cardboard box, one end of which was out. Peterson left the bodies in the water and went straight to the police station, and made a report to the inspector of police, who went down to the water and there at the foot of Postoffice street were the bodies, which were carried to the police station. A clue is said to have been traced to an Icelandic woman.

Kingston is to have another industry. This time it is a blanket factory, with $75,000 capital. Already $20,000 have been subscribed. Morton's brewery building will be utilized. The factory will employ fifty hands and turn out one hundred pairs per day. A large quantity of coarse wool grown in this locality will then be utilized in home manufactures.

OTTAWA, Feb. 8.—Mr. Blake was re-elected leader of the opposition unanimously.

Rumors without number are afloat that the government intends making extensive changes in the marine laws of the Dominion.

A Farmer's Hot-Bed—Boxes.

"L. A. G." asks us: "Will a hot-bed pay a farmer with a small garden?" If he has had experience in the management of one, and will give the needed time to the care of it, and can find a sale for the plants he does not wish to use himself, he can no doubt make the source of moderate profit. But if a it care of a hot-bed will take time that can be better employed otherwise, it is not worth while for him to make one for the sole purpose of supplying his own garden with plants. It is better to buy the few needed plants, or, better still, raise them in window-boxes. We have often referred to these, but their utility does not seem to be generally appreciated. They allow one to provide all the plants of early cabbage, cauliflower, tomatoes, or whatever would be sown in a hot-bed, which are needed in an ordinary garden, at no expense in money and very little time or care in labor. Boxes are readily procured at any country store; as the window-box need be only three inches deep, an ordinary box may usually be sawed in two, using the top for the bottom of the upper half. These are to be nearly filled with light, rich soil, in which the seeds are to be sown, and kept in a sunny kitchen window. When the plants show the rough leaves, i. e., the leaves that follow the seed-leaves, they are to be transplanted to other boxes and given more room. Some manage by the use of old tomato and oyster cans to raise a supply of plants. It is easy, if some one in the family will give the needed attention, to thus have an abundance of plants for the family garden.—American Agriculturist.

The Japanese Islands.

The area of Japan is about 150,000 square miles, comprising nearly 3,000 islands, mostly small. Of the four large islands Yesso is most mountainous, though having some extended plains well adapted to the production of wheat and rye. The island of Sagalian was ceded to Russia in 1875. Yesso and Curule islands are full of valuable timber. The forests of Japan are mostly evergreen.

In all about one-tenth of Japan is cultivated, and only about one-fourth of it is adapted to cultivation—an area scarcely greater than the State of Illinois. Yet the population sustained is 33,000,000. Of course the population largely depends upon fish, of which there is a surprising abundance. Agriculture has hardly made any advancement. In three centuries the product of the country has scarcely been increased. The tea product now amounts to nearly 25,000,000 pounds annually.

A LARGE SALE.

C. J. Judson, of Wallaceburg, takes reat pleasure in saying that Burdock Blood Bitters is having a largely increased sale; he says he has received numbers of testimonials to its virtues in the ailments for which it is recommended. (20)

Cities and Crime.

In forty years the population of the United States has grown from 17,069,453 to 50,155,783. In this time the largest proportionate increase has been in the cities. This is one of the worst features of our civilization. The great bulk of all the crime and misery of the nation is to be found within the limits of municipalities. Yet there is a desire on the part of young men to crowd into the cities, while those brought up in the latter are rarely fit for country life.—Cincinnati Gazette.

AN Alabama man who was put on trial for stealing sheep fell dead just as the prosecution was opening the case, and the Prosecuting Attorney was so put out about losing his speech that he wouldn't even look at the body.

SIR GARNET WOLSELEY says that 90 per cent of the crime in the British army is due directly to intemperance; that when the men are removed from the temptation of strong drink crime is practically unknown among them; and that when he was in South Africa his escort had very hard work to do, but did it without grumbling, and behaved better than any other set of men he ever was assisted by, for the reason, he believes, that every man in the company was a total abstainer.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S

CHLORODYNE:

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

Advice to Invalids—If you wish to obtain quiet, refreshing sleep, free from headache, relief from pain and anguish, to calm and assuage the weary aching of protracted disease, invigorate the nervous media and regulate the circulating systems of the body, you will provide yourself with that marvellous remedy discovered by Dr. J. Collis Browne (late Army Medical Staff), to which he gave the name of CHLORODYNE and which is admitted by the profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered.

CHLORODYNE is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma.

CHLORODYNE acts like a charm in Diarrhœa, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery.

CHLORODYNE effectually cuts short all attacks of Epilepsy, Hysteria, Palpitation, and Spasms.

CHLORODYNE is the only palliative in Neuralgia Rheumatism, Gout, Cancer, Toothache, Meningitis &c.

From Symes & Co., Pharmaceutical Chemists, Medical Hall, Simla, January 5th, 1880. To J. T. Davenport, Esq., 33, Great Russell street, Bloomsbury, London. Dear Sir,—We embrace this opportunity of congratulating you upon the wide-spread reputation this justly esteemed medicine, Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne, has earned for itself, not only in Hindostan, but all over the East. As a remedy of general utility, we much question whether a better is imported into the country, and we shall be glad to hear of its finding a place in every Anglo-Indian home. The other brands, we are happy to say, are now relegated to the native bazaars, and, judging from their sale, we fancy their sojourn there will be but evanescent. We could multiply instances ad infinitum of the extraordinary efficacy of Dr. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne in Diarrhœa and Dysentery, Spasms, Cramps, Neuralgia, the Vomiting of Pregnancy and as a general sedative, that have occurred under our personal observation during many years. In Choleraic Diarrhœa, and even in the most terrible forms of Cholera itself, we have witnessed its surprisingly controlling power. We have never used any other form of this medicine than Collis Browne's, from a firm conviction that it is decidedly the best, and also from a sense of duty we owe to the profession and the public, as we are of opinion that the substitution of any other than Collis Browne's is a DELIBERATE BREACH OF FAITH ON THE PART OF THE CHEMIST TO PRESCRIBER AND PATIENT ALIKE. We are, Sir, faithfully yours, Symes & Co., Members of the Pharm. Society of Great Britain, His Excellency the Viceroy's Chemists.

CAUTION.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood stated that Dr. J. Collis Browne was undoubtedly the Inventor of Chlorodyne; that the story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, which, he regretted to say, had been sworn to.—See "The Times," July 13, 1864.

Sold in bottles at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9., 4s 6d and 11s. each. None is genuine without the words 'Dr. J Collis Browne's Chlorodyne" on the Government stamp. Overwhelming medical testimony accompanies each bottle.

Caution—Beware of Piracy and Imitations.

Sole Manufacturer, J. T. DAVENPORT, 33, Great Russell Street Bloomsbury, London.
